Adrian is a visionary furniture designer and maker renowned for his exquisite craftsmanship and deep reverence for nature's beauty. With a career spanning over 17 years, Adrian has honed his skills as both a creator and a restorer, with an extensive knowledge of antique furniture conservation & restoration while seamlessly blending contemporary design pieces with organic forms found in the natural world. Born and raised surrounded by the ever changing Kerry landscape, Adrian's connection to nature serves as the cornerstone of his creative process. Each piece he crafts is infused with a sense of harmony and balance, reflecting his belief that furniture should not only be functional, tactile and visually pleasing but also evoke an emotional response.

Founded by Mary Murphy and Tom Johnson in 1997, and based in Kenmare since 2010, stop.watch productions have produced audio-visual content spanning a range of genres, winning several IFTA nominations along the way. Moving to Kerry helped us to focus our interest in science content, resulting in documentaries such as Aine Lawlor: Facing Cancer, What's Ireland Eating? and the 2-part series Stressed. We went on to combine our passion for science with parenthood and started making children's TV. Our series Body Brothers and Let's Find Out! are currently streaming on RTE Player. The show we are presenting at Le Cheile is an earlier production called Wonder What? which tells stories about where things come from, how they are made and how things work...

Fiachra Crowley is a multidisciplinary artist from Kenmare whose primary focus is stoneware ceramic. Using the hand building techniques of pinching, slabs, and coiling, Fiachra creates an array of pieces, from functional ware to framed art. In his work, Fiachra strives to find beauty in simplicity and aims for his creations to enhance a space, adding to it, rather than overwhelming. Since opening on Henry Street in May 2021, Fiachra has gone on to supply pieces to a number of notable names such as Sheen Falls, The Park Hotel, and Ballynahinch Castle. Within the last year he has also launched a bespoke collection with Adare Manor. The collection is exclusively available from Adare alongside his own work.

PORCELAIN

Instagram @markus_jungmann_ceramics

www.markus-jungmann.com

I work professionally with clay since the 1980's and have returned to making after spending 25 years teaching ceramics in Cork. In my studio in the Kenmare countryside I'm exploring interplays of order and flow with an affinity for functional ceramics and a leaning towards simplicity. I work with porcelain on the potters-wheel or press mould for the angular shapes. The surface treatments are inspired by my environment - nature, the Atlantic coast and the mountainous Irish countryside of Kerry. I use photography to capture images and ideas with a focus on textures, patterns and structures that I incorporate into the surface treatment, be it through gestural application of glazes, print or slip trailer patterns.

LANDSCAPE PHOTOGRAPHY

Instagram @normanmccloskeygallery

www.normanmccloskey.com

For over 30 years my work has paid homage to the magnificent and inspiring landscape of the west coast of Ireland, in particular my own local landscape of Kerry and West Cork. I strive to make images that portray my deep connection to the Irish landscape, and how it's ever changing beauty has had such a profound affect on my life. I return to locations again and again, sometime over many years to seek out those gifted moments of light that often shows these locations with a dramatic and unseen feel, giving a more thoughtful image for the viewer to consider.

Jane Foley

JEWELLERY

foleyjane@hotmail.com

As a child I witnessed the transformation of light and space created by my parents and their architect Hugh Elliott. I was inspired by their creative collaboration in the restoration of the Lime Tree restaurant. Their appreciation of building materials, form and light combine to make this space a joy to experience. From early days I have been surrounded by family and friends with a clear vision to let all that you do be done in love. I graduated from Dit School of Architecture in 2000 and have since worked in the profession. I enjoyed the contrast of two years immersed in a workshop in Cork studying Art & Metalwork. For me, working with metal was a natural step. The process of learning and joy of making was heightened at this time under the mentorship of artist Damien De Barra. In Lyre I also learned the importance to pause and draw inspiration from this special part of the world.
